

The fourth general meeting for Jersey Village Key Club occurred on the 18th of November at 4:00 PM on Zoom. In the fourth general meeting, there was not as much to talk about compared to other meetings, but there were a few key updates.

To start off the meeting, the president, Cindy Vo, says the pledge while the other members stay mute, so that there is not a lot of feedback in the meeting. After the pledge, the event coordinators talk about the upcoming events. For one event, titled "COVID-19 Notes", members are given the opportunity to write letters to give to people who are affected by covid-19. Members are advised to be sensitive in these letters by Vuong Vu, the secretary for Jersey Village Key Club, as many of the people who are affected are in dire situations that should not have occurred in the first place. After talking about the covid-19 events, Vuong briefly discusses in-person events for this school year.

Initially, there was no intentions of in-person events ever occurring. Due to the nature of the club, we will be providing very limited and small in-person events. It is discussed that if a member were to attend the event, then Jersey Village Key Club is not responsible for anything that happens to them, as we do not encourage participating in in-person events, but rather, give an opportunity just in case members needed hours. Again, due to the nature of the club, we have allowed this. Some officers, including Vuong, rejected this idea, but it was permitted in the end. Events will still primarily be virtual as expressed by Vuong.

Finally, Cindy Vo talks about shirt designs. She says that shirts are being ordered, and that they will be arriving hopefully in the upcoming weeks. After shirts, she talks about our social media and talks about how members are able to join our social media and sign up for events. In this mini-speech, there is also a website that members can use if they don't have social media to sign-up for events. To end off the meeting, Cindy talks about the upcoming meeting dates, and Vuong concludes and adjourns the meeting.
